Popularity Blows

10 0 2

Chapter 1 by Zara Rose

As the sun set on another day of my life, I realized just how pointless it really was. Popularity had been something that had just came to me, even in elementary school. I had loved it. Now, in high school, I was starting to think that it was just another pointless thing. Just another label. I decided then that I was done with popularity, that I was done with the parties, I was done with the bad grades, and I was definitely done with doing what everyone else wanted me to do. I had been proud of my decision, until I told my 'friends'. They had turned on me faster than blinking an eye. They told me how they really felt about me and how they never liked me and how they would never talk to me again. I just shrugged it off and kept thinking that they would be back before the day was out. It hadn't turned out the way I expected it to. They made good on their words and I was alone. I didn't know what to do, until I met him.
